When you start your picture from a reference, there's little chance you'll draw something truly original. A reference constrains you—be it a certain pose, or a perspective, or the lighting. You can change it, adjust it by using other references, but this very beginning is extremely important for the final effect.

Draw Your Mind Out: How to Create Without Thinking

The important thing to understand when drawing is that what you SEE is not what you PERCEIVE, and you have to draw what you SEE. The example we were given in class was a simple children's wooden block. When we look at it, from a given angle, we see both broad and flat angles, and we see different angles as we move around.
